

▶ RICHARD L. ZETTLER (bottom row, far left) is Associate Professor, Department of Anthropology, and Associate Curator-in-Charge of the University of Pennsylvania Museum's Near East Section. He earned his B.A. from University of Notre Dame (1972) and his M.A. and Ph.D. from University of Chicago (1975, 1984). He is author of a number of articles and two books, The Ur III Temple of Inanna at Nippur and Nippur III: Kassite Buildings in Area WC-1. Zettler worked at Tell es-Sweyhat as a graduate student in 1974. He became Co-Director of the current series of excavations in 1989. (Michael Danti, also a contributor to this issue, is in the top row, third from the right.)

H. LEEDOM LEFFERTS, JR., is Professor of Anthropology at Drew University. He has conducted fieldwork in mainland Southeast Asia since 1970. Most of the work reported on in this article was undertaken in preparation for the first general exhibition of Tai textiles, and accompanying volume, Textiles and the Tai Experience in Southeast Asia, sponsored by The Textile Museum, Washington, D.C. He continues research in Southeast Asia with Louise Cort, focusing on pottery production in addition to textiles.

JEREMY A. SABLOFF is The Charles K. Williams II Director of the University of Pennsylvania Museum of Archaeology and Anthropology. He is also Curator of Mesoamerican Archaeology at the Museum and University Museum Term Professor of Anthropology at the University of Pennsylvania. His most recent books include The Cities of the Ancient Maya (1989), The New Archaeology and the Ancient Maya (1990) and, as co-author, The Ancient Maya City of Sayil (1991). He has undertaken field research in both Mexico and Guatemala and has recently co-directed a five-year project (supported by the National Science Foundation) at the Precolumbian Maya site of Sayil.
