

DOROTHY WASHBURN is an archaeologist and anthropologist with a long-standing interest in the geometries of pattern design and visual categories. Her current research draws on perceptual psychology in order to understand more about how people represent the way they see their world in material objects. She received her doctorate from Columbia University and is currently a Research Associate at the University of Pennsylvania Museum; she also teaches a course in Native American Art at the Maryland Institute, College of Art. MICHAEL W. MEISTER (at back) is Chairman of the History of Art Department at the University of Pennsylvania and a Consulting Curator at the University of Pennsylvania Museum. He has been general editor for the Encyclopaedia of Indian Temple Architecture, sponsored by the American Institute of Indian Studies, and has recently edited Ananda K. Coomaraswamy's Essays on Early Indian Architecture (1992) and Essays in Architectural Theory (1995). Meister co-organized the South Asia Regional Studies Department's 1995-96 seminar, "Defining Spaces: Islam and Cultural Geographies in South Asia." He also helped to organize an exhibition and catalogue, Cooking for the Gods, the Art of Home Ritual in Bengal, at The Newark Museum.
